Dear Hiring Manager,

With the utmost enthusiasm, I am currently open to any Junior Interior Designer/ Assistant opportunities in a diverse architectural working environment to grow professionally. I believe I am the perfect candidate for this position because it combines my experience designing interior spaces, delivering a tailored approach to meet the briefs, and an enthusiastic learning mindset.

As an aspiring BA Interior Architecture graduate from the University of Westminster, I have furthered my skills in presentation, technical detailing, and design software. It is a combination of these skills alongside a passion for deep research for site community, retrofit design and strong ambition that led to the success of my thesis project, the first project attached in the Portfolio, The Eunoia Study Space, which is designed as a sanctuary where a nurturing environment plays a vital role in fostering intellectual growth and well-being.

I believe I will be a good asset as I have received excellent feedback regarding my communication skills with “clients”, both from my work as a sales advisor and during my projects as I engaged with the local community. I also had opportunities to communicate through emails with clients while working at the co-working space as a key sales and customer associate, contributing to marketing campaigns to increase revenue by offering multiple product options and attracting new customers. Additionally, I understand the value of presentation and enjoy finding new ways to support display work, whether as being creative with a showroom for customers as a team member, presenting projects on Behance as a designer or offering a selective method of showing my work through QR code in Resume as a candidate. I believe my skills in these new, engaging presentation methods can help my application reach the high-quality standard necessary.

In architecture, deep understanding is my crucial design principle; I consistently deliver high-quality design work that aligns seamlessly with project briefs. My creative thinking and ability to sketch inspired by diverse sources have allowed me to produce innovative design solutions, including the “Productive” Chair, also known as An Individual Table, from my thesis project. With a keen eye for detail and strong sketching skills, I can contribute to essential concept work using various methods. I’m confident with my practice of Adobe Creative Suite and SketchUp. My projects have been designed and visualised with V-Ray combined with Photoshop. Despite being a recent learner of Revit and Affinity, I’m willing to grow more with consistency in the future.

Moreover, I am looking for an organisation where I can grow and develop my skillset while contributing new ideas and supporting the team. I am a dedicated team member who understands the importance of maintaining a positive attitude within a team. I recognise that success in this role hinges on teamwork, ensuring the project delivers smoothly and remains successful. I can confidently collaborate with the existing team.

I have attached a copy of my CV below and a link to my Portfolio, containing photos of technical details, together with three student projects as well as selected projects for more information. I would love to discuss further the position and what skills I’d bring to the job.

Finally, thank you for your time looking through my profile website, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

Celine Quynh
